2.3 Оценочные средства для проведения опроса (устного/письменного)

Опрос – это наиболее эффективная форма проверки знаний. Он может быть устным или письменным. Устный опрос необходим для проверки усвоения теоретического материала, умения раскрывать внутреннюю сущность явлений. Умение применять на практике усвоенные знания проверяются при письменном опросе. Это могут быть задания на карточках, перфокартах, тесты, экспресс диктанты, задания с комментированием.

Индивидуальный опрос учащихся позволяет учителю получить более полные и точные данные об уровне усвоения.

Фронтальный опрос проводится как устное вопросо-ответное упражнение. Темп опроса должен быть достаточно высоким, что активизирует умственную деятельность, внимание, сосредоточенность, вырабатывает быструю речевую реакцию на иностранном языке, а это, в свою очередь, повышает обучающий эффект процесса контроля. При фронтальном опросе хорошо использовать различные лексические, грамматические, орфографические игры, соревнования и так далее.

Комбинированный опрос – это опрос, сочетающий в себе индивидуальный и фронтальный формы опроса. Не более трети урока будет уделяться проверке умений монологической устной речи т. е. индивидуальному контролю, а остальная часть урока будет посвящена фронтальной работе. При использовании этой формы опроса, вопрос или задание адресуется не только одному ученику, которого планируется спросить индивидуально, но и всем учащимся группы. Например, Why do people have conflicts? Учащимся предлагается прослушать ответ своего одноклассника, дополнить его, внести какие-то свои элементы в его ответ, поставить вопросы отвечающему, чтобы расширить его ответ или уточнить некоторые детали.

Взаимный опрос заключается в парной работе учащихся, которые одновременно тренируются и контролируют друг друга. Такая форма опроса особенно эффективна для развития диалогической речи.

The first stamp in the world was an English stamp. It was made in 1840 to pay the postage on letters going to different parts of the country. Stamps are always interesting because they have pictures on them of the countries they came from; pictures of animals and birds living in jungles or on far-away islands; and pictures showing people dressed in their national costumes.

A stamp collection is not only a good textbook of history and geography. It is also a source of information on many other subjects. Sometimes there are mistakes on stamps. For example, the St. Kitts and Nevis stamp, issued in 1903, showed Christopher Columbus looking through a telescope, an instrument which was unknown in his day. On a German stamp, issued in 1956 in commemoration of the composer Schumann, the music printed on the stamp was not written by Schumann. The people knowing music well saw this mistake at once.

2. Benefits of private business
3. Too complicated to use
4. Bad for business
5. Science brings hope
6. Road incident
7. More parking places
8. Personal choice

A. City centre parking is expensive and many important roads are now closed to private transport. This would be fine — if public transport was cheap and convenient, but it is neither. The result is that people are avoiding the city centre so restaurants, cinemas and shops are closing.

B. The motorcyclist drew alongside and I heard abusive language as he banged on the car roof. I immediately locked the car doors and tried to work out what was wrong. He then shouted that I had almost collided with him. Truth to tell — I didn't see him until now. I tried to apologize but he wouldn't listen.

C. They now have cars that run on electricity, solar power and even on vegetable oil. New petrol engines are super-efficient and make less harmful emissions. More people are working from home because of advances in communication technology and computer security. At last we have some grounds for optimism.

D. As she approached the traffic lights the driver in front of her tipped out a mess of fast food boxes, polystyrene cups and chip bags. She pressed her horn angrily. "Why don't people consider what they do", she wondered helplessly. "Someone will have to clear this up and we all have to pay for it."

E. Sarah has worked for herself more than 10 years now. It had been risky but now her interior decoration business is a success. She loves being her own boss. It constantly amazes her that her friends in big corporations believe they have job security. How can they think this way when these companies are constantly firing people to make bigger profits?

F. It was not easy deciding. It never is when buying a new car. Reliability and comfort are big issues as are fuel economy, maintenance and so forth. A car has to feel right as well. Price and value for money are also critical. But in the end Ralph made his decision confident that it was just the right one for him.

G. Jane studied the small print. To make a successful insurance claim for her accident she needed so much information. Several complicated forms took hours to complete. She then needed three independent quotations, a witness statement, and a police statement and after everything, she still had to pay the first $500 anyway.

4. Which of the following was NOT the reason why Polina didn't want to move to

- 1) She was afraid of doing badly at school.

- 2) She didn't want to part with her friends.
- 3) She was reluctant to change her lifestyle.
- 4) She was afraid of Texan climate.

Lost in the Heat

Polina didn't want to move to America. At the age of 12, she was very set in her ways and did not welcome change. She had a group of friends whom she had known since nursery school and enjoyed hanging out with. She also could hardly speak any English, so she doubted she would be able to make any new friends.

Her father was selected to be a Russian representative for the International Space Station project to NASA. They were moving to Houston, Texas, for a year. First, she imagined Texas to be desert with cowboys riding around on horses. When she found out that Houston was a big city, however, she imagined skyscrapers.

The reality turned out completely different.

Nobody actually lived in the city. It was surrounded by many suburbs, which were really just small towns. They lived in a suburb called Katy, in a neighborhood with houses that all looked the same as if stamped out by identical cookie-cutters.

She had really been afraid of the heat. On the big wall map they had in Moscow she had seen that Houston was the same latitude as Africa. But now she barely noticed it because of the blasting freezing air-conditioning everywhere: in the car, in every store, and at home. Every time she stepped outside, however, she was assaulted by the overpowering heat.

Her parents were off at work, so she found herself alone most of the time. She tried watching TV but couldn't understand anything. She thought about chatting with her friends back in Moscow, but then remembered that it was the middle of the night on account of the time difference.

That was when she decided to go for a walk. She knew it would be scorchingly hot, but she felt suffocated sitting inside. So she lathered up with sunscreen, laced up her sneakers and went outside.

The full force of the heat was like a blazing furnace. But after a while she got used to it. She walked along the street, thinking about how strange it was here. In Moscow, everyone lived in apartment buildings with courtyards. In the summer, there would be lots of people out strolling, enjoying themselves. Here she didn't see a single person. An occasional car passed by but that was it.

She kept walking aimlessly until she stumbled upon a highway. To her left, there was a field with cows. Beyond this small oasis of country life, other housing communities were visible in the distance, mirroring the one she lived in. Further down the highway was a small convenience store. She was thirsty so she walked there to get a drink.

When she opened the door, she felt frosty relief from the heat. The cashier looked up, smiled and said,

"How're you doing? It sure is a scorcher today ain't it?"

Polina had no idea what he was talking about, so she just stared at him.

"What's wrong, little darling, cat got your tongue?" he asked, but she just paid and left.

She didn't notice which direction she was going and ended up in a neighborhood she assumed was hers. Everything looked familiar. It was only when she couldn't find her house that she knew she was totally lost. She was sweating and feeling dizzy and when everything started going black, she remembered the cows. She should have looked for the field with cows to get back. That was her last thought...

When she woke up, she was lying in a hospital bed. Her mom and dad were there. "What happened?" she inquired.

A nurse didn't understand the language, but guessed her question.

"You're lucky to be alive little lady, you had a heat stroke. Guess you know now why people don't go on walks in the Texas heat!"

2. Установите соответствие между заголовками 1–8 и текстами A–G.

Запишите свои ответы в таблицу. Используйте каждую цифру только один раз. В задании есть один лишний заголовок.

1. A step to a wider variety
2. Varieties of theatre
3. Modern problems
4. Theatre and politics
5. Origin of theatre
6. Ladies enter
7. Not the least important
8. Stars for a repertoire

A. Modern Western theatre comes in large measure from ancient Greek drama, from which it takes technical terminology, classification into genres, and many of its themes, stock characters, and plot elements. The Greeks also developed the concepts of dramatic criticism, acting as a career, and theatre architecture. The theatre of ancient Greece consisted of three types of drama: tragedy, comedy, and the satyr play.

B. Western theatre developed and expanded considerably under the Romans. The Roman historian Livy wrote that the Romans first experienced theatre in the 4th century BC. The theatre of ancient Rome was a thriving and diverse art form, ranging from festival performances of street theatre, nude dancing, and acrobatics, to the staging of broadly appealing situation comedies, to the highstyle, verbally elaborate tragedies.

C. Theatre took on many different forms in the West between the 15th and 19th centuries, including commedia dell'arte and melodrama. The general trend was away from the poetic drama of the Greeks and the Renaissance and toward a more naturalistic prose style of dialogue, especially following the Industrial Revolution. Theatre today, broadly defined, includes performances of plays and musicals, ballets, operas and various other forms.

D. The eighteenth century in Britain introduced women to the stage, which would have been extremely inappropriate before. These women were looked at as celebrities but on the other hand, it was still very new and revolutionary that they were on the stage and some said they were unladylike and looked down on. Charles II did not like young men playing the parts of young women, so he asked that women play their own parts.

E. Theatre took a big pause during 1642 and 1660 in England because of Cromwell's Interregnum. Theatre was seen as something sinful and the Puritans tried very hard to drive it out of their society. Because of this stagnant period, once Charles II came back to the throne in 1660, theatre (among other arts) exploded because of a lot of influence from France, where Charles was in exile the years previous to his reign.

F. Stagecraft is a term referring to the technical aspects of theatrical, film, and video production. It includes constructing scenery, hanging and focusing of lighting, design and procurement of costumes, makeup, props, stage management, and recording and mixing of sound. Considered a technical rather than an artistic field, it is equally crucial for the practical implementation of a designer's artistic idea.

G. While most modern theatre companies rehearse one piece of theatre at a time, perform that piece for a set "run", retire the piece, and begin rehearsing a new show, repertory companies rehearse multiple shows at one time. Repertory theatre generally involves a group of similarly accomplished actors, and relies more on the reputation of the group than on an individual star actor.

4. In paragraph 1 “I was running wild” means that the boy

- 1) hardly spent any time at home.
- 2) led an uncontrolled life.
- 3) became very angry.
- 4) had an unhealthy lifestyle.

Scarcely had we settled into the Strawberry-pink Villa before my mother decided that I was running wild, and that it was necessary for me to have some sort of education. As usual when a problem arose, the entire family flung itself with enthusiasm into the task of solving it. Each member had his or her own idea of what was best for me.

Sitting under the open window in the twilight, I had listened with interest, not unmixed with indignation, to the family discussion of my fate. Finally my mother decided that George would be a good teacher for me. Now it was settled, I wondered vaguely who George was, and why it was so necessary for me to have lessons. But the dusk was thick with flower-scents, and the olive-groves were dark, mysterious, and fascinating. I forgot about the imminent danger of being educated, and went off with Roger to hunt for glow-worms in the sprawling brambles.

Later I discovered that George was my brother's friend and he had come to Corfu to write. There was nothing very unusual about this, for all Larry's acquaintances in those days were either authors, poets, or painters.

My new teacher came over to the villa to discuss my education with Mother, and we were introduced. We regarded each other with suspicion. George was a very tall and extremely thin man with a brown beard and a pair of large spectacles. He had a deep, melancholy voice, a dry and sarcastic sense of humor. However, he was not upset by the fact that there were no school-books available on the island; he simply looked through his own library and appeared on the appointed day armed with his own selection of books. He patiently taught me Geography from the maps in the back of an ancient copy of Pears Encyclopedia, English from books that ranged from Wilde to Gibbon, French from the book called “Le Petit Larousse”, and mathematics from memory. From my point of view the most important thing was that we devoted some of our time to natural history, and George carefully taught me how to observe and how to note down observations in a diary. At once my enthusiastic interest in nature became focused, for I found that by writing things down I could learn and remember much more. The only morning that I was ever on time for my lessons were those which were given up to natural history.

Every morning at nine George would come into the little dining-room of the villa, sit at the table methodically arranging the books. He would droop over the exercise-book pensively, pulling at his beard. Then in his large, clear writing he would set the task for me to solve.

“If it took two caterpillars a week to eat eight leaves, how long would four caterpillars take to eat the same number? Now, apply yourself to that”.

While I was struggling with the apparently insoluble problem of the caterpillar appetites, George was practicing some dancing moves in the hall as at that time he was engaged in learning some of the local dances, for which he had a passion. Through all this I would be watching him, fascinated, the exercise-book lying forgotten in front of me. Mathematics was not one of our successful subjects.

In geography we made better progress, for George was able to give a more zoological tinge to the lesson. We drew giant maps and then filled in the various places of interest, together with drawings of the most exciting animals and birds to be found there.

9. The boy couldn't solve the mathematics problem because he

- 1) didn't like to make any effort.
- 2) was not interested in caterpillars.
- 3) refused to do mathematics in general.

10. The geography lessons were more successful because

- 1) George knew geography better than mathematics.

A. New York is really the melting pot of the world. Over 30 percent of its residents have come from abroad. It is believed that the city has the greatest linguistic diversity on the planet. There are over 800 different languages spoken by its people. As some of these languages are nearly extinct, the City University of New York has begun a project called the Endangered Language Alliance. Its aim is to preserve rare languages like Bukhari, Vhlaski, and Ormuri.

B. New Yorkers love to think they know everything about their city: where to find the best fruit, how to avoid paying full price at museums, what route to take to avoid traffic. But New York City can reveal new treasures even to its veterans. Beyond the city where New-Yorkers work, eat, play and commute every day lies a hidden New York: mysterious, forgotten, abandoned or just overlooked. There are places about which you're not likely to read in any guidebook.

C. The Chrysler Building was in a race with the Bank of Manhattan for getting the title of the tallest skyscraper in the world. The Bank was likely to triumph, with its height of 282 meters. But the spire of the Chrysler Building was constructed in secret inside the tower. Just one week after the Bank of Manhattan was finished, it was put in place, making it 318 meters tall and beating the Bank. It wouldn't keep this title for long: one year later the Empire State Building was erected.

D. The Flatiron Building was constructed between 1901 and 1903 at the intersection of Broadway and Fifth Avenue. It was designed by Chicago's Daniel Burnham as a steel-frame skyscraper covered with white terra-cotta. Built as the headquarters of the Fuller Construction company, the skyscraper was meant to be named Fuller Building. But locals soon started calling it "Flatiron" because of its unusual shape. The name stuck and soon became official.

E. How does Rockefeller Center manage to find the perfect fir-tree each Christmas season? They do aerial searches by helicopter, of course, and bring it to the city during the night when there isn't much traffic on the streets. After the tree is taken down for the year, it continues to be useful. For example, in 2005 Habitat for Humanity used the wood to make doorframes for houses for the poor and in 2012 the paper was used to publish a book.

F. In New York life never stands still. People have to call cabs, ride subway cars, do business of all kinds, eat pizzas and sandwiches for lunch. When you multiply that by more than eight million people in less than 500 square miles, you get the idea: everyone goes everywhere as fast as it is humanly possible. Whatever you do, don't stop in the middle of the sidewalk or you'll make everyone around you incredibly angry.

G. New York is extremely easy to navigate. Manhattan is divided into numbered streets from north to south and avenues from east to west. It's almost impossible to get lost there. Buses are useful to travel around Manhattan, and the subway is the best means of transport to the other parts of the city. At some stage you'll definitely use a yellow taxi. Try to get one on an avenue that's going in the same direction you are – you'll save time and money. And don't forget to leave a tip for the driver.

The Survival of the Welsh Language

Wales is a small country of just over 3 million people, on the north west seaboard of Europe. Despite many historical incursions of other peoples, particularly the English, it has preserved its ancient Celtic language, A____. Welsh is habitually spoken by about 10% of the people, half understood by a further 10%, and not spoken at all by the majority in this 'bilingual' society. Up to the First World War most people were Welsh speaking, especially in the mountains of North Wales. The English-speaking areas were along the more fertile coastal plains. On the whole there was an easy tolerance of the two languages, B_____.

By 1919 there was a considerable drop in Welsh speakers. This was due to the large flows of capital investment from England into the South Wales coalfield, C_____.

Now, D_____, commerce and everyday business were carried out in English. In the rural mountain areas 80% to 85% of the population were Welsh speakers, E_____.

However, in the coalfield country of Glamorgan 70% spoke English only, and in its neighbour border county the figure was over 90%.

By 1931 the number of people able to speak Welsh in the whole of Wales had fallen to 37% of the population, F_____. It continued to drop and reached its lowest – 18.6% — in the 1990s. But by the start of the 21st century, numbers had begun to increase again and reached 21.7% in 2004!

4. Women pilots from ATA had no instrument training because

- 1) it was an auxiliary air force.
- 2) they were not supposed to fly in low visibility.
- 3) their main job was to deliver Spitfires to airdromes.
- 4) there was no money for this during the war.

Crash Landing

At that time the people of Britain would have been shocked to know that women were flying their most famous war plane. But the fact is that the ATA (Air Transport Auxiliary) had over 100 women pilots who delivered more than 300,000 air craft during the war. We had to fly the Spitfires from the factories and deliver them to airfields dotted around the south of England. Normally we would be flying in daylight with good visibility conditions.

That is why we were never given instrument training as our instructors told us that with all the restrictions of war time, there was no time or money to spare for this luxury.

Occasionally we had to fly other aircraft — without any kind of additional training at all. Probably some high ranking, non-flying military official somewhere said that all aircraft were exactly the same to fly. Well — I can assure you that this is not true. With unfamiliar aircraft we had ten minutes to read an instruction booklet called the “Ferry Pilot Notes”: And that was it. We had to climb in, fire up, taxi and then take off in completely unknown flying machines.

That particular day, the day I came so close to death, was my twenty first birthday. I had no cake or candles that day and my two friends and myself shared some chocolate— the only luxury available in those days. We drank apple juice, and ate apples and cheese. We entertained ourselves with silly stories. But at one solemn moment we also made a toast to absent friends and remembered the girls who had died delivering aircraft.

In the morning we were driven to the factory and my worst fears were realized. Instead of a lovely new and familiar Spitfire I had a bulky Torpedo bomber. We all hated these as several had crashed without any clear reason why. I was able to take the Ferry Pilot Notes into the canteen and studied them over breakfast. I had a very uneasy feeling in my stomach which had nothing to do with the breakfast I was consuming. I had birthday kisses from the other girls but it only made me feel worse.

At about 111 was given my flight plan and it was time to go. I looked at the sky. There was a strange quality to the light that I didn't like and I was worried. With no instrument training, fog or mist made flying incredibly dangerous and absolutely terrifying. With a heavy heart I fired up the engine.

Within 20 minutes I was approaching the river Forth. But I couldn't see the river as clouds thickened up around me. I took the aircraft lower and lower looking for a glimpse of the ground. At one point I was sure that I was virtually at ground level but I couldn't see a thing. It was too dangerous to continue. I could hear my heart beating even over the roar of the engine.

When it happened — it happened really quickly. The plane hit water. I didn't see anything. I was thrown against my straps — and then a flood of cold seawater in my eyes and mouth. I was a mile out to sea!

I was certain I was going to die. Funnily enough— I was perfectly calm. I even thought that my ATA insurance payment would really be a big help to my Mother. But then survival instinct kicked in. I was still alive — and close to shore. I had no life jacket or any survival gear but I was a good swimmer. I was certain there were no bones broken and I didn't have to swim far. I was picked up by a fishing boat that I had narl-owly missed in the fog. And in the end I got a real birthday drink after all — a cup of spiced, dark rum.

My parents move a lot because of their jobs so for me changing schools is not a big deal. I can easily adapt to any new environment, and I study well, so my academic performance is relatively the same regardless of the school I currently attend. I understand it depends a lot on your character traits. I'm sociable, optimistic and outgoing, so it's easy for me. I guess changing schools could be difficult for an introvert or a very pessimistic person.

Speaker B:

I have never had to change schools, but I think I wouldn't mind that if I had to. Don't get me wrong, I like my school, but I think a new school means new opportunities and it must be so exciting. You will meet new teachers and change your communication circle and will generally have a chance to look at the world from a different angle. It can also be useful in the future because you will definitely change jobs in the future.

Speaker C:

I have been attending the same school my entire life and I would hate to change schools. When I watch films about that, usually such films are comedies for teenagers. It's always quite difficult because you meet new people and have to communicate with them and you never know how they will treat you. Maybe it's easy for some people, but I believe most teenagers will find that very stressful and wouldn't like to have such an experience.

Speaker D:

I had to change schools once and I can't say it was a horrible experience. On the contrary, my new teachers and schoolmates were very kind to me. Still, I missed my old school, old teachers and classmates and my old school building. When changing schools you certainly get something new, and probably it's even much better than you had before, but you also lose something and therefore can't help but feel a little bit sad about it.

Speaker E:

I would hate to change schools and it's not because I worry about losing my friends or having problems communicating with my peers. The thing is, you will have to take your school finals, and when you change schools it's always a stress and your academic performance will certainly get worse. Don't forget that your new school won't necessarily be better in terms of educational opportunities. This is what would worry me if I had to change schools.

Speaker F:

My parents are thinking of moving to a different part of the city and I will probably have to change schools, because commuting will take me too much time, and they don't want me to waste time as I'm going to have my final exams next year. I'm really looking forward to going to a new school, because I don't really like the one I'm going to now, and I hope things will be better in a new school. I don't know which one it will be though, but I hope for the best.

They say I look as sweet as a piece of candy on my prom night. And why shouldn't I? My dress was actually made from thousands of bright multicolored starburst candy wrappers. 18 thousands to be exact. In case you are wondering how I got all those wrappers to make the dress I didn't eat all those starburst candies myself of course. My friends and family were very kind and consider it and they helped me to collect the wrappers over the past year. Speaker B:

Oh my god. The memories of raspberry hard candy. That's something, believe me. My grandmother always, just always had them around at home. I love them more than anything. I would sell my soul for one. You flavor it slowly until you get closer to that soft center and then crash it to the roof of your mouth. The goosy soft center goes out with the most delightful and delicious burst of raspberry. Whoever invented those candies, he was a genius. Speaker C:

My favorite cookies to make are cinnamon doodles because I just love the smell of them baking. The sense of smell is powerful and when my kids smell cinnamon they feel warm and fuzzy all over, because of the fun we have in the kitchen. But you might be surprised by the known fact that cinnamon is one of the first treat spices and in fact it's even mentioned in the Bible. It was used to make holy and anointed oil for church. Speaker D:

My first love what comes after chocolate, of course, was Godiva. When I was a student I had a part time job in New York and every weekend the minute I've got paid I would go to a little boutique and buy a small box of the most delicious Godiva sweets in the shape of the half walnut with a half of walnut on top. The box was 14 dollars then and it was worth every penny. I could eat them all till the end of the afternoon and then dream about the next box. Speaker E:

Wedding decorations create that special atmosphere you are looking for at your reception and can include anything you want. The choice is really endless when it comes to various materials and colors. For those young in heart sweets can be used. They could be added into vases or bowls, either individually or to a one massive bowl in the middle. For romantic souls a bouquet of chocolate lollypops can be made in one large vase or in individual glasses. Speaker F:

I wouldn't have remembered this except the time I was walking around waiting for a friend and had a hankering for candy. I thought: surely there must be a candy store around here somewhere, right? And then I saw this place. It was unreal. A awesome retro candy, combined with fashion, clothes and jewelry. I wouldn't buy any clothes there because of the high price, I was more interested in the candies than and there was lots of it.

Вариант 3 Speaker A:

I like it when it rains. The heavier – the better. The British say: "It's lovely weather for ducks”. People think me strange, but that’s me. If it’s warm, it’s such a pleasure to walk on the rain, completely wet yet feeling like a child, if it’s cold outside, rain makes your home million times cozier. On such days I cancel all my meetings and appointments. Rap up in a blanket and watch some good old film or soap. There’s nothing like rainy weather. Speaker B:

I agree with the idea that the climate can affect our moods and even national traits. In my country, for example, there is a wide variety of the weather conditions: from extreme cold to extreme hot. In a place where I live the weather is cold, the sky is cloudy and people’s behavior takes some certain characteristics. In this case people tend to be irritable but there are warm origins in our country where people are mostly really very friendly.

Speaker C:

To my mind, the deterioration of the weather conditions happens due to human’s activities. Bad weather is just a result of our thoughtless behavior, such as nuclear tests and wars. Even if our individual negative thoughts can lead to bad weather. Our planet is a live organism, so when it falls ill in one place it’s other parts can suffer too. All negative energy of man-kind searches the way out and one of these is through bad weather conditions.

Speaker D:

I believe, if you living in a place like Britain where the weather seems to change daily if not hourly sometimes, you can be forgiven for thinking that the weather is random. In fact, the weather is controlled by systems, moving around arias of the globe. In the UK the weather depends on depressions, often cold lose and anticyclones also known as highs. As far as I know, highs bring sunny weather while lose can bring unpleasant rain and wind.

Speaker E:

I’ve read that the reason study suggests that certain people may have a unique special gift for predicting the weather, but it’s quite possible that these people would use that talent in another way. Since the same group have a remarkably considerable success in forecasting changes in another chaotic system – the stock market. Winning badpue wonderful, make millions in Wall street and know what to put on every single day – I’d really love it!

Speaker F:

I feel a bit under the weather. It’s a common complete in Britain. Especially on Mondays. And it seems to me, that the weather is responsible for physical and emotional state. I think changeable weather makes hard to concentrate and I must say that hot weather makes me snappy. Some suggests that the weather also leads its mark on character but I reckon, that the economic, political and social factors have a stronger effect than the weather.
